THE LONDON SENSATION.

The Pall Mall Gazette Throws more Light on the Vile Traffic.

Help from the Salvation Army—The Hideous Traffic—Horrible Depravity.

In its introduction to the articles which appeared for four successive days, under the title: "Maiden Tribute in Modern Babylon," the Pall Mall Gazette amongst other statements says: "The fact that the Athenians took so bitterly to heart the tribute of seven maidens, which they had to pay every nine years to the minotaur, seems incredible in the light of the fact that every night in London many times seven maidens, selected as much by chance as were those who drew the lot in the Athenian market, are offered up as the maiden tribute of this modern Babylon. Unless this tribute is shorn of its worst abuses, the resentment which the reform might appease may hereafter prove the virus of a social revolution. Indeed, it may be the one explosive strong enough to wreck the throne."

HELP FROM THE SALVATION ARMY.

The Pall Mall Gazette's inquiry commission pays a high tribute to the assistance given it by the Salvation Army. The commission would have been almost helpless without that assistance. The police were not consulted because of the fear that they would warn the brothel-keepers. The archbishop of Canterbury and the bishop of London gave hearty support throughout the entire investigation, and were put in possession of many of the appalling facts in advance of their publication. The commission is prepared to prove crimes of the most ruthless and abominable description, systematically practiced in London without hindrance or even the smallest effort at prevention.

MOTHERS SELLING THEIR DAUGHTERS.

The narrative gives instances where mothers were only too anxious to sell their own daughters under thirteen years of age for immoral purposes. The narrative throughout speaks of the victims as "parcels." For instance, "I have consigned three parcels to So and So," showing the business to be of a purely commercial character. One procuress said: "Nurse, girls, shop girls, sometimes governesses form our chief supply. We rise often at 7 o'clock in the morning and scour Hyde park and Regent park, watch nursemaids and finally secure a victim."

DECOYING COUNTRY GIRLS.

Another startling feature is the active part taken by young girls who themselves have fallen. They act as decoys at underground railway stations especially, but other railway depots are also frequented by these decoy girls as affording a field for ruining country girls, who generally offer an unresisting quarry. The commission continues: "It is easy for a girl to enter a brothel, but very difficult to get out. Besides running into debt, cases constantly occur wherein girls find themselves under lock and key. Another feature is the prevalence of nominally temperance hotels, which are really brothels, where girls are entrapped as servants, then drugged, made drunk and ruined."

AN ALLIANCE AGAINST MORALITY.

"We have been told," the commission continues, "that at one famous house in the east end the police allowance is £500 yearly, besides free quarters when wanted. An alliance is thus struck up between the police and brothel keepers. One lady devoted to rescue work, speaking with authority, says that whenever she wished to save a girl from a brothel she was compelled to take the greatest care not to let her intention reach the ears of the police." The Gazette urges the establishment of local vigilance committees. It also advocates police laws, equally severe as regards men soliciting women as for women soliciting men. "A severe law for the weaker sex and a lax law for the stronger," it says, "is scandalously immoral."

A HIDEOUS TRAFFIC.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The World's London cable special says: In regard to the threatened libel suits against the Pall Mall Gazette, the editor, Mr. Stead, says: "Let those who do not wish to shake the very foundation of social order think twice before compelling us to confront in court the brothel keepers with the prices of blood, and prominent public men with the victims of their lawless vice." It seemed some would secure through their agents in various parts of Great Britain and the continent young girls of 13 or 14 years of age, of common parentage, bring them to London and put them in charge of the best masters, not only in literature but also in every department. They were never allowed to go upon the streets, except under charge of a governess or maid, and when duly educated and refined they would be introduced into questionable establishments.

TELL-TALE RECORDS.

The books of a notorious woman of the city show that she was the intermediary as well for many women of good and even the highest social position. The exposure in this respect furnishes a shocking commentary upon the condition of morals in the "better circles" of the metropolis. The entries in her book go to show that she kept regular credit accounts with some of her male patrons, the amount charged in some instances reaching £1000. Some of the entries show that she would temporarily rent one of her houses to such a patron, with furniture, servants and a skilled cook—an elegant and complete entourage in fact. No money was paid by any patron directly. She would render her account to him at regular intervals and he would send the amount due by a messenger.

THE DRIFT OF OPINION.

NEW YORK, July 13.—The Post's London correspondent says: I have taken the opportunity to converse with men representing all shades of opinion, respecting the Pall Mall Gazette revelations, and I can state that public opinion here is divided into three classes. First come the people either professing disbelief in the whole matter, or who say that it was all known before, and who therefore condemn the exposure strongly. Second comes those giving credit to the paper for the best motives, but disapproving of its sensational form, and expressing a belief that the editor had been hoaxed by disreputable persons whom he had talked with; the third party is thankful that the thing has been done. They don't care to criticize the details, but give the Gazette the strongest and most grateful support. I am bound to say that the first class of people mentioned above belong chiefly to the aristocratic and so-called sporting circle. The third class is increasing daily, and it is now evident that the government will institute no proceedings against the paper. Of 1000 letters received by the editor only one contained a protest. Already public meetings are announced to support the Pall Mall Gazette.

In the course of a long conversation with Mr. Stead he said: "I have never known public opinion to turn so sharp. People who were cursing me on Monday came to-day to shake hands. I am perfectly satisfied with the reception of these revelations. You may say for me that I am convinced that similar inquiries set on foot in every great city in America would yield results not nearly so extensive or dreadful, but enough to startle Christian, God-fearing communities of America quite as much as ours have been." The sensation in Paris is almost as great as in London.

HOPES TO POCKET $5,000,000.

Senator McInnes on the Port Moody-Coal Harbor Terminus Question.

In the Senate on the 6th inst., Hon. Mr. McInnes moved for copies of all correspondence or telegrams received from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the Legislature of British Columbia or any of their officials, addressed to the Railway Department or any member of the Privy Council respecting the western terminus of the Canadian Pacific railway at Port Moody, Coal Harbor, or English Bay. He expressed considerable disapproval at the probability of Coal Harbor being made the western terminus instead of Port Moody, for which place he had a decided preference. He claimed that the latter was by far the best harbor, and that to extend the road would cost an additional million or two. He thought that the Dominion and Local governments had not acted quite fairly in this matter, and that the idea of making Coal Harbor the terminus was merely a scheme by which the syndicate and a few adventurers hoped to pocket about five millions. If Coal Harbor was decided upon the government should recoup those who invested at Port Moody.

Sir Alexander Campbell said he had no idea that the honorable gentleman intended going into the subject at such length, and was therefore not in a position to reply so fully as he would have liked. Port Moody was chosen as the terminus of the Canadian Pacific railway, and all subsidies, etc., from the government end at Port Moody, and if the Railway Company go lower down they do so at their own risk and expense. From the little he had seen of Port Moody, he did not think it was such a favorable site for a large town as it had been reported. After some further discussion the motion was carried.

THE LATE REBELLION.

Riel Indicted—The Counts Charged Against Him.

Regina dispatches of the 6th says: Louis Riel was formally handed over by the military authorities to-day at 5 p. m. Stipendiary Magistrate Richardson read the indictment consisting of six counts, to Riel, who was remanded till the 20th for trial. Only the escort, officials, and counsel for the Crown were present. Riel looked healthy and quite self-possessed.

At Battleford on the 5th, a fleet of boats arrived from Pitt this morning with the infantry corps.

Big Bear was captured by a small detachment of the mounted police under Superintendent Gagnon, at South river, between here and Carlton. He will be taken to Prince Albert. He was making across the line, having separated from the band. The Miserable Man, and a large number of other bad Indians who figured in the Frog Lake massacres, surrendered to Col. Otter, who has returned from the north. Detachments of the police are hunting the remainder of the band. Their capture is only a matter of time, as they are half starved and demoralized.

Near Frog Lake Crossing is a large white cross which was erected to the victims of the Indian massacre at Frog Lake. The cross is readily seen many miles away, being over thirty feet in height. It was erected by the 65th Battalion. The Midlanders also erected a splendid cross, suitably engraved, and put it up in the cemetery at Frog Lake, to the memory of Gilchrist and Williscroft, victims of the Indian massacre.

CANADA CAPS THE CLIMAX

In Her Show of Cereals at the Antwerp Exhibition.

LONDON, July 6.—It was officially announced by the Antwerp Exhibition Commission that the jury of the inspection of cereals considers it is bound before proceeding further to indicate that the awards bear the most complimentary testimony to the beauty and high quality of the cereals exhibited by Canada, which are undoubtedly superior to those shown by any other country.

Customs Reform in Alaska.

A Washington special has long accounts of customs reforms on the Pacific coast. Referring to Alaska it says: The costly establishment at Sitka is utterly useless and should promptly be suppressed. The collector of the district should be removed to Wrangel, which should be made the chief port of entry. One man can do all the work, and have three weeks of leisure in each month. A deputy collector may be stationed at the first port on entering the territory, and to be within call of the collector at Wrangel, in case of need. With these two, and an inspector on the mail steamer, to watch the delivery of cargo at several calling places of the steamer, duties can be as well performed for $4800 per annum as they now are for $18,000.

THE WIDE WORLD.

THIS DAY'S DESPATCHES

The Munster Bank Failure.

Special to THE TIMES.

CORK, July 15.—The excitement over the failure of the Munster Bank, limited, continues unabated. At an early hour this morning depositors began assembling at the doors of the bank here, and at Dublin, Limerick and other cities and towns in Ireland where the bank has branches. At noon the streets in the vicinity of the bank in this city were blocked with a crowd of people clamoring for their money. A large force of police were stationed at the bank to preserve order. The crowd is hourly growing larger and more disorderly and fears of a riot are entertained.

Dispatches from Dublin, Limerick and other points, where the bank has branches state that the same scenes are being enacted at each of those places.

Russians Advancing in Persia.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, 2:20 p. m., July 15.—The Times has received special dispatches from Jagderabaten, via Meshed July 11th, which say that it is rumored that the Russians have advanced in force to Zenleffark, and that they are locating Persian territory as though it belonged to Russia. The dispatches also says the British frontier commission is moving nearer to Herat. Reinforcements are arriving at Askabad. The advance of the Russians has made the Afghans anxious, but they are determined to resolutely resist any attempt to seize their territory. They are puzzled at these warlike preparations of the Russians, under cover of pacific assurances. It is believed that General Alikhanoff, commander of the Russian advance, has determined to force on war, and that he is deceiving the Czar in regard to his real intentions.

Condition of McCullough the Actor.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Captain W. M. Conner of the St. James Hotel, goes every day or two to the Bloomingdale Asylum to see John McCullough. He has arrangements made so that he can hear every day by telephone of the actors condition. He said yesterday poor Mac has everything that is necessary for his comfort. He is as satisfied there as he would be anywhere. He talks once in a while just as he used to do about going here or there, or about engagements he must meet. Then they take him out in the garden and walk him around and he forgets all about it. Physicians say it is only a question of time when his mind will be entirely gone, from paralysis of the brain. Then he will probably die in a short time. He may live a year or he may die in three months.

Will Not Prosecute.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, July 15.—The Lord Mayor, in accordance with the government decision announced by the Home Secretary in Parliament yesterday, not to prosecute the Pall Mall Gazette, has discharged a large number of news boys who had been under arrest for several days under a charge of selling alleged obscene literature. Archbishop Canterbury, Bishop of London, Cardinal Manning and Samuel Morley this afternoon met at the Mansion House, and began their work of special private enquiry into the evidence upon which the Gazette based its charge of iniquity in London. The mayor and city recorder, were by invitation to be present at the meeting.

The Fall in Consols.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, July 15.—The fall in the price of consols to-day, on account of news from Afghanistan, was 15-16 per cent.

The market at the stock exchange, at the close was panicky. Russian securities were 3 per cent lower than closing prices last evening.

Pacific Mail Dividend.

Special to THE TIMES.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The directors of the Pacific Mail declared a dividend of 1¼ per cent this morning.

London Money Quotations.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, 4:30 p. m., July 15.—Consols opened at 100 3-16 and closed at 99 3-14 for both money and account.

653 Deaths in One Day.

Special to THE TIMES.

MADRID, July 15.—There were 1550 new cases of cholera reported in Spain yesterday and 653 deaths from the fell disease.

MARINE NOTES

The Olympian arrived at her wharf this morning at 9:15, making a very quick trip. She left again at the usual hour.

Ship Richard III, Capt. McIntyre, was towed to Departure Bay by the Br. tug Alexander, where she loads coal for San Francisco. Mrs. McIntyre and children accompanied the captain.

German bark Leonore is chartered by J. W. Grace to load lumber at Burrard Inlet for the west coast of South America.

Capt. Thomas Huntington, formerly of the steamer Mexico, is now in command of the steamer Newbern, on his old route from San Francisco to Guaymas.

The bark Wm. H. Besse is in the Columbia river from Tacoma, and will take berth for New York.

POLICE COURT.

[Before E. Johnson, S. M.]

Lawrence McKenna and Hugh Buck, two drunks, were fined the usual $5 each.

The case of Phillips, on remand from yesterday, for assaulting Demetrius Dogand, an amicable arrangement having been come to between the plaintiff and the defendant to keep the peace, the magistrate dismissed the case with a warning.

Geo. Gardner, on remand, charged with being of unsound mind, was further remanded to the 20th inst.

Ah Ling, Ah Ho, and Wong Jem, charged with poisoning Mah Chuey Ling, were remanded until to-morrow.

Canadian Manufactures in B. C.

The steamer Olympian yesterday brought a car load of stoves and stamped ware for Mr. W. L. Cusack. These goods are from the foundry of Messrs. J. M. Williams & Co., Hamilton, Ont., and are specially adapted for the British Columbia trade. Evidently our trade with eastern Canada is showing signs of improvement.

Will Return.

Prof. A. L. Francis will visit Victoria on or about June the 15th, prepared to fill all orders for tuning and repairing, and will continue to make periodical visits.

Address, THE TIMES P. & P. CO., Victoria, B. C.

J. C. McLAGAN, Manager.

THE Maritime Province members are pressing the government to adopt more stringent measures to prevent the introduction of cholera than are now provided by the quarantine regulations.

THE resolutions granting further subsidies to several short lines between the Province of Quebec and maritime ports have been adopted. considerable discussion on them, however, is probable, at later stages.

IT appears from the debates in the House of Commons on the Northwest rebellion that several prominent Conservatives have reaped a rich harvest out of the rebellion, and out of the misfortunes of the country. LIEUT.-GOV. DEWDNEY, it is charged, was able to sell his hay, to supply the troops, at $400 a ton, and his teams were hired at $10 per day. The Conservative jobber in land had made lots of money out of the rebellion. The Premier had such faith in DUMONT, DUMAS, ISBISTER and other leaders of the rebellion—he believed them such sound Conservatives—that he offered them government positions.

A correspondent writing THE TIMES from Ottawa says that the dullest debate of the session was that on the Chinese restriction act. None seemed to care a straw about the matter, and a thin house chatted and read the newspapers during the delivery of the speeches. MR. CHAPLEAU's speech was a resume of portions of the Chinese report, a document favoring the Chinese. The principal objection raised was one by HON. MR. BLAKE, who was opposed to the creation of a new office under this bill. He thought that the exclusion of Chinamen under the power created by the bill might very well be trusted to the local authorities, and most people will agree with him, but the opportunity of creating new offices is one too precious in SIR JOHN's eyes to be neglected.

AT Regina LIEUT.-GOV. DEWDNEY does things differently to any of the other Lieut.-Governors in the Dominion, or even the Governor-General at Ottawa. His levity, however, is in keeping with his general line of conduct since his advent to the Northwest. At present the eastern press is criticising his actions somewhat severely. Our Hamilton namesake says: While hundreds of Northwest settlers are in a half-starving condition, the Lieutenant-Governor of the Territories holds high carnival at Regina. He gave a "brilliant ball" on Friday evening last, everything being in the most extravagant proportion possible. To say the least, it is unseemly that while the shadow of death hangs over the Northwest capital, and the men constituted rebels by the flagrant misgovernment of MACPHERSON, DEWDNEY and the goodly company of abettors continue to arrive in custody, the Lieutenant-Governor should be disporting himself as if the chief end of the expedition in which so many brave men have fallen were to provide him with opportunity to display his gay uniform and drink champagne.

THE AMENDED FRANCHISE BILL has been read a third time and passed. The following amendments to the bill were accepted by the government and adopted: To place owners of property in cities and towns in the same category as sons of farmers, including as well grandsons, and sons-in-law, and to provide that in case of a tenant where the rental is not stated, the fact of the property being assessed for $300 in cities and $200 in towns shall be prima facie evidence of the right to vote; to provide that any Indian agent who induced an Indian to fraudulently register himself as a voter shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be disqualified from holding office for two years; to provide that in Prince Edward Island and British Columbia, besides persons entitled to be registered as voters under the provisions of the act every person of the age of twenty one, not disqualified by law, who is entitled to vote now in the said provinces, shall have the right to be registered as a voter. On the motion for the third reading 19 amendments by the opposition were negatived and the bill read a third time.

THE LATE REBELLION.

In the House of Commons on the 6th instant, the Hon. Mr. Blake opened the debate on the Northwest troubles. In a vigorous speech he arraigned the government for its misconduct in the management of affairs in that country. He complained of the government withholding several important papers, which he asserted would throw much light upon the question; however enough had come to light to convict the government of its culpability and its responsibility for the rebellion. The proofs were overwhelming: neglect, delay, breaches of promise, bad appointments, incompetency and maladministration were the cause of the outbreak, as he was prepared to show. The hon. gentleman then proceeded to review the various petitions and complaints received from Northwest settlers, which had been totally ignored by the government. Notwithstanding repeated warnings of RIEL's intentions, the government did nothing to avert the outbreak beyond making an effort to buy up DUMONT, ISBESTER, DUMAS and other rebel leaders with government offices. SIR HECTOR LANGEVIN had visited the territory, and though the settlers laid their grievances before him, he returned and reported that everybody was satisfied, and that he only found two men who had grievances. These men complained because there were not enough women in the country. Unfortunately, the Minister's superficial view of things had led to blood and tears. All that the government proposed to do by their Order-in-Council of Jan. 26, 1885, was to enumerate half-breeds. Nothing was said about appointing commissioners to grant scrip to half-breeds. It was not until after the Duck Lake fight that the government was aroused to the necessity of doing something to redress the grievances of the settlers. No sooner had the rebellion broken out than great diligence and zeal was shown by the government, and a commission was issued to grant the half-breeds all they asked for. He showed that the lands upon which two or three half-breed settlements—Batoche, St. Laurent, Gabriel's Crossing, St. Louis, De Langevin and others—were situate had been granted away to the Prince Albert Colonization company, and this company had been told that they had power to eject all half-breeds and other settlers on these lands. That colonization company was made up of JOHN WHITE and THOMAS MCGREEVY, Tory members of the house, JAMIESON, son-in-law of MACKENZIE BOWELL, SHARPLE'S, brother-in-law of MR. CARON, minister of militia, and others. The company finding settlers on the land, refused to eject these settlers and asked that their money be refunded to them, but the government refused this and told them to go on and eject the settlers. The company warned the government that this would cause a rebellion. JAMIESON and WHITE had been granted blind shares in that company in consideration of services and influence in obtaining favors from the government. Throughout his speech MR. BLAKE made it perfectly clear that the recent rising in the Northwest which has cost Canada so much in human gore and money was no sudden freak—was not without warning—but on the contrary, it was the climax of a gradually growing discontent, that at every step was brought before the notice of the government, reported upon by their officers, and told them with damnable iteration by bishops, priests, lieutenant-governors, surveyors and apparently every one who had a right to hold communication with them. He closed a magnificent speech by moving:

"That it be resolved that in the administration of Northwest affairs by the present government previous to the recent outbreak there have been grave instances of neglect, delay and mismanagement in matters affecting the peace, welfare and good government of the country."

SIR JOHN MACDONALD replied at great length to MR. BLAKE, his speech occupying two hours in its delivery, meeting each point of MR. BLAKE's arguments and skillfully parrying the charges made against the government. The premier asserted that the speech just delivered by the leader of the opposition would be a gratuitous and a most able brief for the counsel of LOUIS RIEL and his fellow rebels at their trial at Regina. He then charged MR. BLAKE with insincerity for advocating a different line of policy now to that adopted by himself and his party while in power previous to 1879 towards the half-breeds and their claims. In assuming office the present government had found that their predecessors had taken no steps whatever to adjust the grievances complained of; that the half-breeds should receive the same treatment as was accorded white people. SIR JOHN, in concluding his speech, appealed to his followers in the House and in the country to uphold the government in its dealings and treatment with the Northwest Indians and half-breeds.

HON. MR. LAURIER followed SIR JOHN, and at once declared himself in sympathy with the half-breeds, whom he believed had just grievances requiring to be redressed. Other speakers on both sides of the House followed. The debate is certain to be an animated one, but it will not affect the position of the government.

THE Canadian Gazette announces that six or seven cargoes of cattle, which have recently arrived in England from the St. Lawrence, are admitted on all hands to be far superior to anything previously shipped from the Dominion; indeed, they are now superior to the best corn-fed Americans arriving from the United States. The success of the trade in live animals from the Dominion is entirely dependent upon good quality, the competition in dead meat from various parts of the world annually increasing. It is, therefore, very satisfactory to note the facts mentioned.

RIGHT HON. HUGH C. CHILDERS, late Chancellor of the Exchequer, has been granted a pension of £2,000.

THE DOMINION CAPITAL.

The Chinese Immigration Bill at Last Before the House.

Northwest Matters—The Franchise Bill Read a Third Time.

OTTAWA, July 4.

There was a very small attendance of the members of the House at the sitting on Dominion Day, which probably accounted for the fact that a good deal of business was got through on that day. The bill to restrict and regulate Chinese immigration has at last been considered by the House. The question occupied the greater portion of the day's sitting on Thursday on a motion to go into committee on the resolutions upon which a bill was to be founded. The HON. MR. CHAPLEAU introduced the subject in a long speech, in the course of which he said the Chinese were industrious peaceable citizens, and tolerably free from vice, but they worked cheaply, and so came into conflict with the white laborer, who comes to this country to stay, and identifies himself with all its interests. The resolution imposed a tax of $50 per head on all Chinamen coming into the country and a restriction on vessels bringing Chinese immigrants to one for every 50 tons of tonnage. Of course this being a British Columbia question every representative of that province felt bound to speak to it, and MESSRS. SHAKESPEARE, BAKER, GORDON and HOMER, each spoke briefly and approvingly of Chinese restriction. MR. BARNARD, who never speaks in the House, kept his seat, and MR. REID, the only other British Columbia member, went home several weeks ago. In the course of their remarks the B. C. members pointed out that UNLESS SOME RESTRICTION WAS EXERCISED the province might be converted into a Chinese colony. The bill was undoubtedly a move in the right direction. MR. BAKER, of Victoria, said that not only were the morals of the Chinese decidedly bad, but their presence had been prejudicial to the interests of the industrial classes, and had not been of any advantage to the business of the country, for each Chinaman sent home to friends an average of $25 a month from British Columbia. Only last month two vessels brought 800 Mongolians across to Victoria, so that the necessity for legislation was evident. He supported the proposal to require a fee of $50 from every Chinamen entering the Dominion, but wanted the restriction raised to one in every hundred tons. MR. CHAPLEAU, however, suggested that the more liberal limit be allowed as a start, and the law could be amended in future if considered necessary. The resolutions having been reported a bill founded on them was introduced and read a first time. The bill was read a second time and the House went into committee of the whole, upon it yesterday. In committee an amendment was adopted to bring the bill into force a month after the passing thereof in respect of Chinese immigrants coming into the Dominion from the United States, and in six months for those coming from other countries. This amendment is necessary with respect to Chinese immigrants from the United States, who might flock into Canada before the bill becomes law, and secure all the advantages of prior residence to going out and returning to the country at will.

NORTHWEST MATTERS.

In answer to a question the other day, the HON. MR. CARON said that 26 graduates of the Royal Military College were attached to the forces in the Northwest. The government resolution to appoint an additional stipendiary magistrate for the Northwest territories, evoked some opposition. At present the Northwest Council is composed of 14 members, eight of whom are elected and six appointed by the government. It is proposed that the new magistrate should be a member of the Northwest Council as well, and it was pointed out that this would, with the casting vote of the Lieutenant-Governor, give the nominated element a clear majority. And besides this, the people of the Northwest are desirous of having the council elective with representation in the Federal Parliament as well. An amendment, by HON. MR MILLS, to enlarge the area of the electoral districts for representation in the council for 1000 to 2000 square miles, so that the people might have representation at an earlier day, as the Act requires a certain number of residents within the prescribed area, was negatived. The provision in the Northwest Administration of Justice Bill which forbade the use or possession of firearms other than smooth-bore shotguns in the northwest, shot guns in the territories except on a written permit from the Lieutenant Governor, gave rise to a lively discussion, several members of the House, both supporters and opponents of the government, characterized the clause as monstrous and absurd. The debate was adjourned on motion of the premier, and it is thought that we will not hear of the bill again during the present session.

INLAND REVENUE.

The bill to amend the Consolidated Revenue Act has been read a third time. The bill proposes to provide for an abatement for shrinkage by evaporation in spirits while maturing, and for the retention in bond of spirits for a period of one year up to 1st July, 1890, and of a period of two years after that date, before being entered for consumption. Methylated spirits for mechanical purposes would be exempted from the provision for retention in bond. In order to meet the objections raised by those interested in the manufacture of methylated spirits and vinegar, Mr. Costigan introduced an amendment exempting spirits for mechanical purposes from the two years' regulation, which he proposed to do. To provide for bringing new distilleries gradually into operation, he inserted an amendment in the bill that in case of new distilleries being established after 1st July, 1887, by any person who is not a holder of a license as a distiller on July 1st, 1886, the distiller licensed in respect thereof, may enter and remove for consumption for any period one-third of the product at any time after its manufacture during the two years next following the issue of the license, and that during the three years next following the expiry of the two years referred to, the licensee may enter and remove for, consumption one-third part of the product which has been manufactured for at least twelve months.

HON. MR. CHAPLEAU, Secretary of State for Canada, is seriously ill and has left Ottawa for New York to undergo a critical surgical operation.

FRANK LESLIE.

HOW THE NEW YORK PUBLISHER DIED OF CANCER.

Mrs. Leslie's Pathetic Story of Her Husband's Sickness—The Task of Telling a Strong Man That He Must Die.

[New York Cor. Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.]

The New York papers have been remarking that the late Frank Leslie, the well-known publisher, died of cancer of the mouth and throat. This is not strictly true. With Mr. Leslie there was no break of the skin or discharge of any sort. It was a cancerous growth upon the throat. The only thing apparent to the eye in his case was a slight swelling upon the gland of the neck, beneath the jaw, near the jugular vein. There was no visible breaking down of tissue.

Mrs. Leslie herself told me the other day how her husband died. No detailed account of it had ever been written, she said, and it would be of interest now because of Gen. Grant's case. I give the story, as far as may be, in her own clear-cut, well-chosen words. The musical voice, the glance of the eloquent eye, I can not reproduce.

Mr. Leslie was a man of perfect physique. He had never suffered from an ailment in his life. Five weeks before his death he was as sound and strong, to all appearances, as any man in America.

One morning, five weeks before his death, Mr. Leslie said to his wife: "My collar feels tight. Put your finger on my throat, and see if there is not some kind of a swelling there?"

She did so, but could find nothing. A few mornings later he asked her again to see if his throat was not swelled. "My collar seems to choke me," he said. This time she detected upon the neck a small swelling, like a gland hardened and enlarged by cold. There was no pain, but he thought he had a cold, which had swelled his throat. Mrs. Leslie made a loop in his collar, which let them out and gave more room. He went to his office every day, just as he had done for years.

Three weeks before his death Mrs. Leslie herself did not feel well one morning was a little dyspeptic, and proposed to consult a physician.

"Suppose you step around with me, and ask about your throat," she said.

He agreed to do so. After prescribing for the lady, the doctor looked at Mr. Leslie's neck.

"Take off your coat," he said, "and your vest."

The physician's face was entirely impassive.

"You might try electricity," he said. "Take it three times on alternate days, and then come back." The doctor knew then that his patient was a doomed man, but he said not a word. The Leslies thought he treated the matter lightly.

The days went on till within two weeks of the day he died. He and his wife were still ignorant of the doom that hung over him. He began to have great difficulty in swallowing. Then he said, impatiently:

"My sore throat is no better." The doctor is tampering with me. I'm not satisfied. I want a consultation—six or eight doctors."

Dr. J. Marion Sims was his personal friend of years. He asked him about the consultation, and requested him to be present. Dr. Sims said:

"By all means, old boy, have it if you like; as many doctors as you want."

The consultation was held. Once more he removed his coat and vest for the doctors. They sounded him, questioned him, and prodded his neck and chest. Then they went aside and counseled with one another. At the end of it all they said not a word.

"They simply looked quiet," said Mrs. Leslie. It was in December. A few days later, one sleety, snowy morning, Dr. Thompson, the first physician who had seen the patient sent for Mrs. Leslie. A thought shot through her brain like a flash.

"It was the very first time I had an idea that my husband might be seriously ill. I went to the physician and said: 'Doctor, what did you send for me for? Was it about Mr. Leslie?'

"Yes," said he, "it was. I must tell you that the trouble of his is of a cancerous nature."

Mrs. Leslie held fast to the chair in which she sat.

"Do you mean that he will die?" she said.

"Yes," he answered, "his case is hopeless. I have known it from the first."

She visited Dr. Sims, and told him the verdict.

"My poor child, I know it," said Dr. Sims. "I have known it all along. It is not the disease itself, but the location of it which makes the danger so imminent. The cancerous growth cannot be cut out without risk of severing the windpipe or jugular vein. We cannot perform an operation."

The physicians told her that nothing could be done for him but to give him opiates, just as they are giving them to Gen. Grant now. Time went on till within ten days of death. Still he was ignorant of his fate. Up to that time he had gone to his office regularly.

"I knew he was going to die," said Mrs. Leslie, "but I knew not how to tell it. His business was in the hands of an assignee. He had to compose with the creditors, and he, unconsciously to himself, was in the hands of death. Any other misfortune than the last I could have borne.

"His appetite was good. He was able to swallow beef tea, soft-boiled eggs, and raw oyster, able to take enough food to keep him nourished. He was not emaciated, his strength was not weakened. I kept the accounts of his illness out of the papers, so that he himself might not read how hopeless his case was."

At last, however, it seemed necessary that he should know. In the unsettled state of his affairs there were a hundred things that he might wish to do, directions he would want to leave behind him, arrangements for the future, and so on. He must be informed.

"Day and night," said Mrs. Leslie, "this thought was with me," how can I tell that great strong man he must die?"

Mr. Leslie had a habit of pacing the floor as Gen. Grant does. He walked up and down in his apartment by the hour, saying sometimes that he had done so many miles and so many laps on that day.

Finally, while thus walking the floor once he said to his wife:

"This doctor is doing me no good with his elixir of life. My throat is slowly but surely closing up. What shall we do?"

"I don't know that we can do anything," she said. Then she knelt down on the floor beside him, and told him the worst.

He took the blow as a strong man should do. He talked over their tangled affairs with his wife, and then uttered the words which the world knows:

"Little girl, if there is any power by which after death I can come back to your side, I will do it. But I want you to go down to my office, take charge of it, and fill in my place till my debts are paid."

After that there was nothing for it but to be as comfortable as possible and wait for the end.

The day he died he arose early in the morning and dressed himself to the last minutia, carefully, as was his wont. He had had six hours' sleep, the attendant said.

"But I don't feel refreshed after it, somehow," he told his wife. "And I haven't any appetite. I think I took enough food last night that I will not require any this morning."

Mr. Leslie was obliged to go out on business. She went to the publishing house, and was lower than usual in the morning. At 9 o'clock she received a telegram to come home at once.

"I knew what it meant," she said. She hastened home with all speed. Mr. Leslie appeared to be sleeping quietly, with nothing alarming in his appearance. She turned to the nurse:

"Why did you send for me like that?" she asked. "You drove me almost mad."

A little while before her husband had undressed himself with his own hands and gone to bed. It was the first time since his illness. As he lay down he said to the nurse:

"Ulli's come."

Mrs. Leslie went to the bed, with her breast on still. Her face was flushed from the rapid walking. She roused her husband.

"What is the matter?" she asked him. "Do you feel worse?" He raised his eyes to her flushed face and smiled. "How pretty you look," he said.

Those were his last words. He sank into unconsciousness, and breathed more and softly, till about 6 o'clock, when he was no more. The pressure of the swelling upon his windpipe caused a gradual and progressive imperfect aeration of the blood, and the effect produced was as if he had taken a narcotic. He became slowly stupefied. In that way he passed away without a struggle or a pang.

HERALDRY AT HOME.

Insignia Emblazoned on Republican Stationery—Chat with an Engraver.

[Boston Globe.]

"What are heraldic devices?" was the question repeated by one of Boston's most fashionable engravers. "They are," he continued, "simply badges of honor granted by a king to his subjects. They are granted to warriors, statesmen, doctors, artists, scientists, etc., for eminence or public service. There is at present a great rage among the upper crust for seals in the form of autographs, initials, crests, and odd ideas such as dogs, cats, owls, horseshoes, etc. One who wishes to be quite comme il faut as regards stationery, must have his residence engraved on a steel die and stamped in colors on the upper right hand corner of the sheet, and in the centre of the flaps of the envelope; one and one-fourth inches from the point—using a seal to close the envelope."

"What is now the most fashionable paper?"

"Among the ultra-fashionable light shades are the thing"—as pinks, grays and creams—having the appearance of being hammered (like silver,) or with a grain imitating woven linen, hot-pressed and hand-made—are, however still in vogue, and largely used by the best people. A large proportion of this paper is stamped in colors from dies that have been in use for from five to ten years. There is a craze among yacht owners to have their paper illuminated in gold and colors from designs combining their own flags with the flags of the different yacht clubs they belong to. Some of the paper illuminated in this way costs as high as 30 cents a sheet, and envelopes to match the same. Among the Boston gentlemen who have dies of this description are William F. Weld, George Warren and George W. Weld. Speaking of odd devices in seals, here is one I made recently for a gentleman named Hatton. It is, you see, a tall hat, with 'ton' beneath it. Here is another; a cat coiled up on the letter T. I made that for a gentleman named Tekat. In monograms the rage is for heraldic tigers, wyverns, snakes, etc., designed to form initials. Many designs, too, are engraved from ideas originating with skilled penmen, who design ladies' Christian names without taking pen from paper. They are usually so difficult for an ordinary observer to read that they are known as cipher monograms. Look at this."

The one referred to read Caroline, and both commenced and ended with the initial letter. It required to me no effort study to decipher it, but when once read appeared comparatively plain.

"How about coats-of-arms?"

"They are becoming very popular all over the United States, and deservedly so. Is it not the most natural thing in the world for a young man to take pleasure in thus recalling a long line of creditable ancestry? As far as the present heraldic artists are able to trace, there are the scions of many illustrious families now residing in Boston."

The Luxury of Snapping-Turtles.

[New York Tribune.]

"I see," continued Fish Commissioner Blackburn, "by this morning's papers a dispatch from Amity, this state, saying that twenty-six dozen snapping turtles have been shipped to this city for food. There is nothing remarkable in that, for snapping-turtles have been shipped to this city for two-ty years. There is a steady demand for them. But they do not come in such quantities as any other season as they do in the spring, when the sun, shining so soft and warm, prompts them to put their heads out of the mud and thus betray their hiding-places to the farmers' boys."

"What class of customers buy snapping-turtles?" was asked.

"Well," said the commissioner, "the steward of the Hide and Leather club always keeps a sharp watch out for them. That club delights in them. Numbers of private individuals with corpulent stomachs and fat purses would prefer a snapper to a diamond-back. Our colored brethren in Thomp-on street are partial to turtle of this kind; while as for the Chinese they would rather eat turtle than fight. The Chinese do not stop at snapping turtle; they eat the common 'skilpots' that Christian stomachs abhor."

"How are these turtles cooked?"

"There are only two ways of preparing them—in a stew or to make soup. They sell in the market at from 6 to 8 cents a pound and weigh from two to thirty pounds each."

A Strange People.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

One of the strangest peoples with whom the Christian missionary has to do are the Falashas, or Ethiopians. They are black Hebrews, about 200,000 in number, living west of Jordan, who have as their holy writing the Old Testament in an Ethiopic version, and who still rigidly adhere to the Mosaic ceremonies and in the time of the great Dispersion, settled in Abyssinia and married wives of that nation—something not strange, as the Ethiopians are Semitic in nationality and language.

To Protect Tombs and Monuments.

[Exchange.]

A society has been formed called "The National Society for Preserving the Memorials of the Dead in the Churches and Churchyards of Great Britain," for preventing the neglect and wanton destruction which so often overtake not only tombs and monuments of the dead, but curious, interesting, and even sacred relics.

An Old Religious Document.

[Foreign Letter.]

The famous "Codex Argenteus," the four gospels translated by Bishop Ulphilas, is preserved in the University of Upsala. It is written on 182 leaves of parchment in letters of silver on a ground of faded purple. It is kept in a glass case and under lock and key. It dates back to the second half of the fourth century, and, besides being of value to the religious world, it gives the secular world all the knowledge it now possesses of the early Gothic, the parent of all the Germanic tongues.

Crocodile Mummies.

[Foreign Notes.]

Crocodile mummies have been found in the subterranean chambers of the Labyrinth, a great edifice built by ancient Egyptian kings. The sacred crocodiles, great reptiles, were attached to the temple of Sebak, the crocodile god. They were exceedingly tame and wore earrings. The Labyrinth seems to have been their sepulcher.

UNITED STATES' TERRITORY.

The Array of Foreign Possessions Which Are Ours by Right of Discovery.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Thousands upon thousands of the square miles of territory dominated by the Lion and Bear are entirely uninhabitable, including as they do most of the north polar regions of both hemispheres and arid deserts and steppes in other climes. The United States is nearly the equal of either empire in the extent of habitable area over which the spangled banner floats. And she, too, has great, almost limitless, areas of ice-covered continents and islands which are never counted as part of her landed possessions, and yet which she may quite as justly be credited with as Russia or England, with certain of their uninhabitable possessions in frozen zones. Few geographies show on their maps these foreign possessions of the United States, and a brief reference to them is likely to surprise the citizen who has been unaccustomed to contemplate the possessions of the American Union as hedged in by the bounds of her states and territories.

But she can really make quite an array of foreign possessions, which are hers by the divine right of discovery, which has given to most of the powers of the earth their foreign dependencies. The voyages of Kane and subsequent American explorers thus gave the United States the whole northwestern portion of Greenland as far as discovered, and Grinnell land on the opposite shore of Smith sound. The famous statisticians, Behm and Wagner, give the area of the Greenland stretch of ice and glacier, known as Lincoln and Grant land (from 78 degrees to 83 degrees) as 193,709 kilometers, and of Grinnell land at 5,659. Wrangel land has 66,100 kilometers. There are no estimates even of the area of the various islands north of Siberia discovered by the Jeannette, and it is doubtful if they do not belong to the New Siberian group, classed for many years as belonging to Russia.

The great American exploring expedition of 1840 discovered most of the vast ice-hedged coast of the Antarctic continent, which has been roughly estimated to extend over 2,000,000 square miles. Some of the lands discovered by Commodore Wilkes have thus been estimated, the figures being in kilometers: Graham's land, 180,000; Alexandra, 30,000; Wilkes, 165,000; Enderby, 28,000.

The following islands and groups in Polynesia belong to the United States: Barber, Palmyra, Prospect, Fanning, Christmas, Starbuck, Penrhyn, Swan, Pitt, McKean, Hull and Enderby. The United States also owns the bay of Pago Pago in the Samoan islands.

There are no obtainable statistics of any of these "foreign possessions," and the ordinary American citizen is quite content to think of the Union as embracing only the sweep of land from ocean to ocean and lakes to gulf, not even counting in frozen Alaska, and the girdle of Aleutian islands that span the Pacific ocean. If other countries were not granted by geographers their equally "important" possessions, popular knowledge of respective areas would be greatly increased.

Senator Ben Hill's Affliction.

[Cor. Philadelphia Times.]

It has been noticed that men in the army and navy not only hold most tenaciously to life, but meet the great conqueror with more fortitude than any other class of men, but there was within my view one notable exception to this rule. Senator Ben Hill, of Georgia, met death as heroically as any man that ever lived. He was afflicted as much as Gen. Grant is. I shall never forget the day when we met by appointment for the first surgical operation. He was anxious that no member of his family should know the truth as to his condition until after the operation was performed. Together we went to Jefferson college hospital and on the way he said, with a touch of sadness in his tones: "I am in perfect physical health, with the exception of this cancer. I have never been severely sick in my life and ought to have several years of useful life before me. There are great questions coming up in this country for settlement and I want to live to take part in their discussion and decision; but if the worst comes to the worst I shall be content to meet my fate like a man." An hour later a thief of his tongue had been cut out by the doctors and for two days and nights thereafter, until his family reached Philadelphia, I never left the side of the sufferer. Through it all he was as full of fortitude as a king. From the first operation he rallied, but the second and third mutilation followed with physical distress enough to have broken the spirit of the stoutest. Yet after more than two years of waiting and watching he met the Unseen and the Unknown with perfect composure.

The Iron-Clad Mersey.

[London Letter.]

To a man in the crowd who looks at the launch the Mersey, as Mark Twain says of his frog, it has no points different from any other iron-clad. But to the person who knows her construction she is the most extraordinary craft ever set afloat. It is claimed the enemy could shoot away the two upper decks, all the upper works, and then blow away the remainder of the hull till not a vestige of the ship we saw launched remained, yet after such heroic treatment the Mersey would not only remain afloat but it would actually steam away from the enemy, and if the weather were good reach port with her crew.

Imagine the consternation of a Russian crew who had success-fully battered in all the upper works of such a cruiser and then let off a torpedo under her and found that the outside hull or hull sank and left afloat a new kind of steel boat, the like of which they had never seen, and fancy their feelings as they saw there for her quietly steam away, defiantly firing a stern-chaser at the Russians, like a man who slipped off his top coat before starting on a run. I fancy the Russians would think the devil had come to the aid of the British sure enough.

A Very Novel Wager.

[Kingston Freeman.]

A novel wager was made in Middletown the other day between a young lawyer and a gentleman engaged in business in New York. Each is the father of a boy baby, of which he is very proud, and the conversation happened to turn upon the youngsters. Each father was emphatic in his assertions that his offspring was larger and more promising than that of his friend. The outcome of the talk was an agreement that each should deposit $100 in the savings bank, there to remain with principal and interest untouched, until both the babies have attained the age of 21 years. On attaining this majority each of the babies is to be weighed, and the one tipping the scales at the greatest weight is to be entitled to the $200 and interest.

"Orpheus C. Kerr."

[Exchange.]

R. H. Newell, better known as "Orpheus C. Kerr," who as a writer was once very popular, is now broken down, old and dependent. His family have cast him off and he is obliged to see his manuscript, once so eagerly sought for, either coldly rejected or mutilated beyond recognition.

Why Sea Island Cotton Is a Drug.

[Philadelphia Press.]

Sea Island cotton once so famous because in great demand for adulterating silk, is now a drug in the market, the reason being that a way is now known for utilizing ordinary cotton, that costs little in making goods to be sold as "all silk."

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism. Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave.

Poverty and Suffering.

I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. I know it. —A WORKINGMAN.

Change in U. S. Customs Regulations.

The following departmental circular has been issued by the Treasury Board of the United States at Washington:

"Notice having been given by the proclamation of the President, dated January 31, 1885, of the abrogation of articles 18 to 25 and article 30 of the Treaty of Washington, collectors of customs are hereby notified that article 844 of the Customs regulations of 1884, which is identical with article 19 of the regulations of March 30, 1875, made pursuant to article 30 of said treaty, will cease to be in force from and after this date. Shipments of merchandise in transit from one port or place within the territory of the United States to another by a route a part of which is by land carriage through the Dominion of Canada and a great part by the great lakes and the rivers connecting the same, or by the River St. Lawrence, in either British or American vessels, from ports on the Canadian frontier for transhipment to railway cars, and from points on the Canadian frontier at the terminal of railway transportation to points on the northern frontier of the United States, will hereafter be treated in all respects as ordinary importations from foreign contiguous territory."

It is now asserted that these regulations will result in serious injury to the carrying trade of the Dominion. The lake traffic from Duluth, Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit and other lake ports hitherto done by Canadian bottoms will cease, and a large fleet compelled to remain idle, involving heavy loss on the transportation companies. The Grand Trunk, Canada Southern, Canadian Pacific and the Midland of Canada will all be heavy losers, as much of their traffic is thus deprived them. As we read the clause it is not intended to apply to Canadian goods passing through U. S. territory in bond. It is feared the action of the Canadian government on the fishery question is responsible for the changed relations of the two countries on the carrying question.

Censuring the Press.

In the police court this morning, Mr. J. P. Walls, in opening the case against the Chinese women charged with poisoning Mah Chuey Ling, drew the attention of the magistrate to a card which appeared in this morning's Colonist, signed Frank Lee and Ah Wing. He said that these two Chinamen, being officers of the court in their capacity of Chinese interpreters, were guilty of contempt of court, as was also the newspaper publishing the card. The magistrate thought the Colonist had certainly done wrong in publishing the card, and it was clearly guilty of contempt of court and liable to punishment. Newspapers should not publish anything which would be liable to influence the court; it was probably done for that purpose. Cases coming before the court were not to be decided by public opinion, but by sworn evidence, and any attempt to influence the court in its decisions is a contempt of court. The editor should know that it was improper. The Chinese, perhaps, did not know, but the editor should. He would, however, not take any notice of it, and assume that the card in question had been admitted inadvertantly, but hoped that such a thing would not occur again, and he would tell Frank Lee that such actions could have no influence. Mr. Walls said should there be a recurrence of the act he would move for committal.

The Theatre Comique.

Mr. L. J. Cross telegraphed last night to Mr. T. D. Syra & Co., of the Theatre Comique, that he would leave San Francisco to-day with a first class company of fifteen people. The opening will take place on next Monday evening, when a strictly first-class entertainment and good music will be furnished.

THE CHINESE REGULATION ACT.

Regina vs. Wing Chong—Before the Supreme Court.

The appeal of Wing Chong to the Supreme Court, against a conviction by E. Johnson, S. M., under the Provincial Chinese Regulation Act, was argued before Judge Crease yesterday and to-day. Attorney-General Davie appeared for the government and Messrs. Richards, Q. C., and Drake, Q.C., for the appellant.

Mr. Davie argued that the object of the act for the police and sanitary regulation of a large foreign element and the raising of a revenue necessary to meet that regulation. If incidentally trade and commerce were affected the provincial power of direct taxation was not impaired. Treaty obligations of England did not affect the question; and colonies enjoying responsible government could pass restrictive laws irrespective of treaties, as the Australian colonies had done. With respect to the contention that the tax was an unequal one the power of the province within its jurisdiction was supreme, and authorities were quoted to show that power might be exercised so as to discriminate. As a direct poll tax, the act came within the power of the province. It was not a license to carry on any special kind of business.

Mr. Richards, for Wing Chong, said the real object of the act was not to raise revenue or for police purposes—it was to prevent Chinese coming into the province and drive out those now here. The act was a direct interference with trade and commerce. A result of its enforcement would be to deprive the Dominion of the customs duties raised from Chinese importations. Statistics were quoted, showing the importance of the trade created by these people. The Dominion government only had the right of performing the obligations of Canada in respect of treaties. He quoted treaties between China and Britain, and with the U. S.

Mr. Drake to-day disputed that a tax of this kind could be imposed on any one particular class and not on all. In respect to the Australian colony of New South Wales, the constitution of which was entirely different from ours, it was within its jurisdiction, which was entirely unrestricted and had greater scope in passing legislation of this character. Taxation must be uniform, and as far as practicable there should be equality. The license was an indirect tax, being in reality an excise charge, and as such not within the power of the legislature. The power to deal with treaties, such as that of Pekin, was confined wholly to the Dominion government, which in this particular had equal power with the Australian province. The Regulation Act as a whole was not attacked, as most of its clauses were within the power of the legislature.

Mr. Davie replied at length. He said that any argument advanced against this act should also apply to other legislation affecting the Chinese, such as the laws excluding them from the franchise and pre-emptions. The act did not impose a license to carry on any business, and was in reality a poll tax. He took up the points of alleged discrimination, and quoted "Todd's Parliamentary Government," to show that the prerogatives of provinces were supreme.

The argument of the learned gentlemen was concluded to-day, and the court took the question en delibre.

An Alleged Poisoning Case.

In police court this morning two Chinese women, Ah Ling and Ah Ho, were charged with having poisoned Wah Chuey Ling, in a Chinese house of ill-fame on Fisguard street, kept by one Wong Joe. Mr. J. P. Walls appeared for the prosecution, and in opening the case stated that he proposed to show that the deceased was in good health on the 2nd July; that he had received a large amount of money on that day from Nanaimo, and that he died in the house of the prisoners on the 6th July; that the money had not since been found, and that there was strong presumptive evidence of poisoning. Should the evidence appear sufficiently strong he would ask the magistrate, in his capacity as coroner, to order the body to be exhumed that an autopsy might be had.

Mah Joey Chung, sworn, deposed, I am the brother of the deceased; saw him last alive last year; he was then in good health; I sent him $300 this day fortnight; I was then in Wellington; my brother was in Victoria; I sent the money by Mah Gen; the money was to send to China; I first heard of my brother's death on Friday last about nine in the evening; I then went to Nanaimo and telegraphed to Victoria not to bury him until I came down. (telegram produced); I came to Victoria on Saturday, and found the deceased had been buried; I did not find any portion of the $300; a demand has been made upon me for money to pay funeral expenses.

Cross examined by Mr. Gannaway, counsel for the defense. Have had two letters from the deceased since I last saw him, one before and one since I sent him the money; I have the last letter in my possession; (letter produced and proved to be an acknowledgment of receipt of the $300 by the deceased.) Wah Ah Noong informed me of the death of my brother; I gave the money to Wah Tseun for transmission myself; I am a coal miner, and came here from California more than ten years ago; I was never married to Ah Ling, nor did I ever live with her.

Mah Jack Tseun, who was lately Chinese agent for the steamer R. P. Rithet, testified to having received the money from Wah Joey Chung, and paid it to the deceased on the 2nd July, taking a receipt for the same. At that time the deceased was apparently quite well, but he had not seen him since.

The Magistrate stated that so far there was no evidence to warrant the supposition that the deceased had come to his death by any unlawful means, and he could not possibly take so serious a step as that asked for by Mr. Walls in ordering the exhuming of the body, he would, however, detain the prisoners on suspicion and adjourn the case until to-morrow, to allow Mr. Walls the opportunity of procuring further evidence.

Arrival of a Noted Contractor.

Amongst the arrivals by the Olympian to-day were Mr. James G. McDonald the noted Winnipeg contractor. Mr. McDonald comes to this province with the determination to reside therein. He will superintend the erection of the new jail for which he and Mr. Grant are the contractors. Mr. McDonald is a Nova Scotian by birth and has been contracting for the last twenty years throughout the eastern provinces. In Winnipeg during the past five years he has executed contracts averaging one million a year. His last works being the sewerage of Winnipeg, the city hall, the Hudson Bay Co.'s block, the Louise bridge, the bank of Montreal, the new post office, as well as other large edifices. He is an active, energetic gentleman, thoroughly understanding his business in all its details.

Alexander and Pilot.

Captain Douglas, of the Alexander, takes command of the Pilot, which has been sold by the B. C. Towing Co. to Mr. Dunsmuir. The Alexander is now laid up for repairs, the Pilot taking her place to-day. The tug has only recently been completely overhauled and fitted with new machinery, and is considered to be one of the best vessels of the class on the coast. She made a second trial trip to-day.

Board of Delegates.

The board of delegates of the Victoria Fire Department met last evening in the Tiger Engine House. Reports were received from the board of firemen in respect to the late picnic, showing a surplus of about $200, which was placed to the credit of the charitable fund. The monthly accounts were ordered to be paid and the board then adjourned.
